

THE RADAR HOUSTON NOW!

LOCAL FLAVOR

How delicious is that random jar of chocolate sauce (lacking a label, no doubt) sitting in your fridge that you are constantly scraping at for a spoonful? Perhaps somebody's mother made it and sent it to you as a holiday gift? Well, that gave Houston mother Lynn Lasher an idea—she bottled up her own secret sauce and stamped it

Somebody's Mother's Chocolate Sauce. Eat the luscious dark chocolate sauce straight from the jar or drizzled over your Haagen Dazs while you read quotes from moms around the world printed on the label. Lasher is the mother of three somebodies (all Kinkaid grads) who help her run her sweet business. $9 at www.somebodysmothers.com —Megan McBride
